

Privacy statement

We pride ourselves on integrity, a handshake, and keeping commitments. We treat others the way we would expect others to treat us. In that we never feel the need to have a written privacy statement because of the way we conduct ourselves. It does make others feel more at ease to have a written privacy statement.

We honor your privacy and the security of information you provide on our website or through any transactions with us. We have in place a range of safeguards to secure information that we collect. However, as the internet is not a secure system we cannot guarantee that during transmission third parties will not intercept your information.

The personal information we collect on our website will be used by us for internal record keeping, and to enable us to improve our services. We may also use this information for market research and to provide you with details of new products and services.

All personal information you provide on this site will only be held and used in accordance with this Policy and the Data Protection Act 1998. Under this Act we will only process data we hold about you in a lawful and fair manner and will make every effort to ensure that the information provided by you is protected.

We will not sell or share your personal information with third parties.